Description

Ernst & Young's New York Office is currently recruiting JD candidates to join the Firm's Tax Practice. Please see below for more details about these opportunities.

The opportunity to join Ernst & Young's Tax Practice, on a diversified path, will enable you to build your own personal resume by exploring and gaining first-hand knowledge in numerous tax disciplines including, International and Transaction Advisory Services. Through this model you will broaden your technical skills through a concept we call "experiential development". The idea is to develop "well-rounded" tax professionals, while providing the opportunity for you to gain "actual" work experience in several different areas of tax.

You will have the ability to guide your own path and gain the knowledge and experience to determine where you want to focus your career. You will have the opportunity to work on extremely complex, large-scale transactions with significant clients of the firm. For these transactions, it is imperative to have strong research, writing and organization skills. Ernst & Young's Tax Practice operates in a team structure and our professionals have heavy client and Ernst & Young partner interaction.

Ernst & Young's Tax practice is looking to hire professionals from the JD program at all levels (i.e., with and without experience).

Responsibilities

Contribute to client satisfaction by providing timely and effective responses to client needs and concerns. Develop and deliver quality and timely services and work products.

PRLDEF

Corporate Legal Internship, Summer 2009

The Unique CLI Opportunity

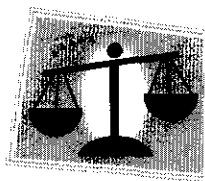

In 1999, The Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund (now LatinoJustice PRLDEF) successfully launched its Summer Legal Internship Program in collaboration with Bristol-Myers Squibb, a leading diversified worldwide health and personal care company. Since then, LatinoJustice PRLDEF has partnered with various corporations, including Bristol Myers Squibb, to expand our paid summer internship program for law students, particularly disadvantaged Latinos and students of color who are interested in pursuing careers in corporate legal departments.

Since corporate legal departments typically do not maintain summer internship programs, LatinoJustice PRLDEF's Corporate Legal Internship Program provides students of color with an otherwise rare opportunity. It also affords corporations with an extraordinary mechanism by which to connect and support current law students who will make up tomorrow's candidate pool.

LatinoJustice PRLDEF will, through its unique Education Division, administer the application process, forwarding outstanding candidates to interested corporate legal departments.

Current corporate partners for the summer of 2008:

- Bristol-Myers Squibb, NY and NJ
- IBM Incorporated, NY
- Johnson & Johnson, NJ
- Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, NYC
- Pfizer Pharmaceuticals, NYC

This is a Paid Summer Program

LatinoJusticePRLDEF's Corporate Legal Internship program is a paid summer internship program for first and second year law students of color who are interested in pursuing careers in corporate legal departments. The summer stipend offered will be determined by each corporation.

Both students and corporations benefit from this unique program. It provides students with corporate experience as well as corporate attorney mentors. The program also gives corporate legal departments the opportunity to incorporate highly qualified, summer law student associates with minimal effort.

Volume 8, Issue 2
November 6, 2008

This Legal Internship Program:

- Allows students to spend the summer working directly with corporate attorneys
- Introduces law students of color to career opportunities in corporate legal departments
- Matches students with mentors within corporate legal departments

About LatinoJustice PRLDEF Education Programs 2

In The Words of Former CLI Interns:

Enhancing and extending human life is not just a mantra in Bristol-Myers Squibb's mission statement. It is a way of life that...every member of the BMS team has internalized.

This summer, I played a part in BMS' mission to extend and enhance human life by spending ten weeks in BMS' legal division along with four other interns. I was assigned to the Technical Operation (Tech Ops) legal group. Tech Ops handles all legal matters arising from the manufacturing end of the pharmaceutical business...As a result, I was afforded the opportunity to become knowledgeable in a variety of legal disciplines.

In addition to "Black Letter Law," I gained a real understanding about what it is to practice law. I worked directly with about twenty-four clients and soon realized how important it is to meet the client's expectations.

Another important lesson I [learned] was the capacity to be flexible and a team player. Because BMS was acquiring DuPont Pharmaceuticals Corporation, Tech Ops was going through a series of changes [which] meant an opportunity for me to get my hands on more complex assignments. My mentor trusted my legal analysis and was completely confident in my legal ability.

BMS Fellow, Summer 2001

I had an unbelievable summer at MetLife. The legal work and the activities arranged by MetLife were exemplary.

As a person with previous law firm experience,...I anticipated that working at MetLife would be similar to working for a law firm: long hours, impending deadlines, and high stress. I found...however, that the legal department in MetLife prides itself in a cooperative, friendly working environment...the deadlines for assignments were generous and the stress was minimal.

As for assignments, [I was placed in] the policy litigation department, but I also performed research work for the employment department. At first, I was not thrilled with...the litigation department since I was seeking transactional experience. However, litigation work unfolded interesting aspects of law, especially appellate advocacy. At the end of the summer, I was thankful...because not only did I learn a great deal about the mechanisms of complex litigation, I found litigation to be a potential career choice.

Overall, I feel very lucky to have had the rare opportunity to work for a major corporation in its legal department in New York City.

MetLife Intern, Summer 2002

I am writing to express my sincere gratitude and satisfaction with my experience as a Corporate Legal Intern. For ten weeks, I worked with a group of intelligent, experienced and easygoing individuals at IBM's legal department in White Plains, NY.

I primarily worked with two attorneys: Maria Fernandez and Mike Cammarota. Maria and I worked closely with IBM regional counsel from Argentina, Brazil, Colombia and Mexico to draft an attachment to a standard finance contract to be used with IBM customers throughout Latin America. This was an excellent opportunity for me to gain a greater foundation in my area of interest, Latin American business law. Additionally, I conducted research for Mike dealing with current legal topics such as trade secrets law and the emerging area of computer malpractice.

Throughout my internship...everyone at IBM seemed extremely eager and enthusiastic to make my experience as educational and enjoyable as possible.

LatinoJustice PRLDEF Education Programs

For thirty-six years, PRLDEF has helped Puerto Rican and other students of color secure access to a legal education by providing a comprehensive array of educational support programs.

The Education Division has three program areas: Pre-Admissions, Post-Admissions and Professional Development. Under the Pre-admission program we offer counseling services, LSAT preparatory courses, workshops, LAWbound® program (for undergrads only), JD Prep Fellowships and Law Day. Law Day is our signature all-day event where representatives from law schools nationwide join us to recruit students of diversity.

The Post Admission program includes the "How to Succeed in Law School" Orientation Workshop for newly accepted law students, The Puerto Rican Bar Association (PRBA) Scholarship for first and second year law students, and our mentoring program (offered in partnership with the Hispanic National Bar Association).

The Professional Development program includes summer legal internships and internship opportunities with various firms and agencies, and first-hand notice of legal employment and networking opportunities via our growing e-mail list service.

The Hispanic National Bar Foundation Partners with Comcast to Create Opportunities for Promising First-Year Law Students With An Innovative Law Fellowship Program

Washington, DC-The Hispanic National Bar Foundation (HNBFB) is pleased to announce the launch of the 2009 HNBFB Law Fellows Program for first-year law students, thanks in large part to the generous sponsorship of Comcast Corporation and the Comcast Foundation. The HNBFB, along with its corporate partners, designed this exciting new program for Hispanic law students with the goal of creating significant professional opportunities and impacting diversity in corporate legal departments. PepsiCo and Chevron have also joined Comcast as sponsors in this effort to opening opportunities for Hispanic law students in the legal profession.

The 2009 HNBFB Law Fellows Program will run for eight weeks and will provide an opportunity for first-year law students to spend the summer at the corporate legal department of the sponsors. The Law Fellows will also spend time in the Washington D.C. company offices to learn about the interplay between legal matters and government relations/public policy issues important to company business.

"The HNBFB Law Fellows Program provides students with the support and resources they need to fulfill their potential in the legal profession," said Susan Gonzales, Comcast's Senior Director of Federal and External Affairs and Vice President of the Comcast Foundation. "The fellows will be the first class to benefit from this exciting partnership, and we at Comcast are eager to be part of their future success."

The program will take place from June 5 through July 31, 2009, and include outstanding law students from some of the nation's top law schools. The fellows will have an opportunity to partake in professional networking and legal training to develop critical skills for success in the legal profession. Each Law Fellow will be assigned a mentor from the legal community in Washington D.C. The program will provide an avenue for law students to prepare for careers in corporate law with the aim of joining the ranks of companies like Comcast in the future. "It is an honor for the Hispanic National Bar Foundation to collaborate with corporate leaders like Comcast who believe in the work of our organization and the talents and promise of Hispanic students," said HNBF Board President Mayda Prego.

The 2009 HNBF Law Fellows will participate in a legal training boot camp at the beginning of the program and will attend panels on preparing for careers as in-house counsel or corporate lawyers. Comcast partnered with the HNBF to strengthen the local community by creating opportunities for the Hispanic leaders of tomorrow.

The 2009 HNBF Law Fellows Class consists of the following law students: Justin Carlson, American University; Gabriela Gross, American University; Rafael A. Perez, University of Pennsylvania; and Thais Pagan, University of Detroit. These law students have superior academic credentials, strong writing and oral communication skills, and demonstrated leadership skills. Interning with Comcast will be Gabriela Gross of Washington, D.C. and Rafael A. Perez of Philadelphia.

Comcast is committed to the communities where its customers and employees live and work. The company and its Foundation focus its community investment initiatives on building tomorrow's leaders, promoting community service and expanding digital literacy.

The Hispanic National Bar Foundation (HNBF) is a non-profit organization for charitable and educational purposes and has been the principal force behind the education of Hispanic attorneys and law students throughout the United States and Puerto Rico for the past 15 years.
