

WESTLAW & LEXIS RULES WHILE ON CO-OP

WESTLAW:

While on Coop, Northeastern Law School students may use their Law School Westlaw passwords for:

- public interest externships/internships not including federal,
- state, or local government and courts
- pro bono and public service program activity required for
- graduation
- research for a law professor, or for a law school course, clinic,
- or moot court
- Students may not use their law school Westlaw passwords for
- research for a court, government office, law firm, or any job
- where a client would be charged for the students' work.

LEXIS:

While on Coop, Northeastern Law School students may use their Law School Lexis passwords for:

- public interest externships/internships including federal, state,
- local government and courts
- pro bono and public service program activity required for
- graduation
- research for a law professor, or for a law school course, clinic,
- or moot court
- If they are working for a firm, organization or any other entity which
- charges a client for the students' time or research performed, then
- use of the academic ID would be in violation of the academic use
- rules.